PROTOCOL: VentureWell on behalf of National Cancer Institute - 00021164, Request for IRB exemption for participants engaging in customer interviews as part of their course work for "SPeeding Research-tested INTerventions (SPRINT)" held at the National Cancer Institute, a division of the National Institutes of Health. (Pro00021164)

DOCUMENTATION REVIEWED:

Protocol Version: • Protocol Number 00021164 (Not Dated)

Using the Department of Health and Human Services regulations found at 45 CFR 46.101(b)(2), the IRB determined that your research project is exempt from IRB oversight. All study related documents will be removed from our active files and archived.

Note: You will still be able to access this study via the CIRBI website under the "Archived" tab on your 'My Home' page for three years. After three years, the study will be removed from the system in accordance with IRB regulations.

The IRB granted this exemption with an understanding of the following:

1. The research project will only be conducted as submitted and presented to the IRB, without additional change in design or scope.
2. Should the nature of the research project change, or any aspect of the study change such that the nature of the study no longer meets the criteria found in 45 CFR 46.101(b), you will resubmit revised materials for IRB review.

The IRB will evaluate the new information and make a determination at that time regarding the research project's status.

If you have any questions or concerns, please use the Contact IRB activity on your CIRBI workspace.

Thank you for selecting Chesapeake IRB to review your research project.
